1 Population in Botswana

The charts show the population pyramid for Botswana in 2000 and that predicted for 2050.

3

- (a) What is shown in a population pyramid? [3]
- (b) Describe what the prediction suggests will happen in Botswana by 2050. [3]
- (c) (i) Draw an outline shape of a population pyramid for a typical developed country to show how it might differ from those given for Botswana. [3]
- (ii) Explain what causes the difference in the shape of the population pyramid of a developed and a developing country. [4]
- (d) Discuss how an improvement in education in a developing country such as Botswana might have an effect on its population. [7]
- 2 (a) Explain why different income groups might have a different pattern of spending and saving. [5]
- (b) Discuss what might influence government spending. [5]
- 3 In February 2005 Kuwait opened a new port extension, said to be the largest and most advanced in the Middle East, near the country's main oil refinery. It took 3 years to build, can accommodate four supertankers at the same time, cost £187 million and is hoped to last at least 30 years. Kuwait is actively seeking new markets for its planned increase in oil production.
- (a) Explain, using demand and supply analysis, why Kuwait might want to seek new markets when it increases its oil production. [4]
- (b) Distinguish between fixed and variable costs and consider which is likely to have the highest proportion in the production and distribution of oil. [6]
- 4 A newspaper advertisement states that there is a job vacancy for a laboratory technician in a large international chemical company. The person will need to be able to travel a lot and will need to have an advanced qualification in chemistry. Another advertisement is for a secretary/receptionist in a local doctor's surgery on four afternoons a week.
- (a) Explain in what type of business organisation the two occupations might be found. [4]
- (b) Explain the factors that might affect an individual's choice of occupation. [6]
- 5 Investment spending is undertaken by both the private sector and the public sector.
- (a) Use examples to distinguish between private sector and public sector investment spending. [4]
- (b) Explain why investment spending is important for an economy. [6]
