Sources for use with Section A.

Answer the questions in Section A on the option for which you have been prepared.

Option 2H.1: The USA, c1920–55: boom, bust and recovery

Source for use with Question 1(a).

Source 1: From a letter written by Jo Ann Robinson to the Mayor of Montgomery, Alabama, 21 May 1954. Robinson was the chief spokeswoman for the Women's Political Council, part of the civil rights movement that was formed to address the racial issues in the city. Here she is following up her recent meeting with the Mayor's representatives.

The Women's Political Council is very grateful to you for considering our views. The Council seeks:

- (1) A city law allowing Negroes to sit on the buses from the back to the front, and whites from the front to the back until all the seats are taken;
- (2) That the buses stop at every community occupied by Negroes as they do in white communities. 5

Mister Mayor, three-quarters of bus passengers are Negroes. If Negroes did not use them, the bus companies would go out of business. More and more of our people are already arranging car-pools with neighbours to keep from being insulted and humiliated by bus drivers. 10

There has been talk of a city-wide boycott of the buses. We, sir, do not feel that forceful measures are necessary to help all bus passengers. We, the Women's Political Council, believe that agreeable terms can be found quietly to the satisfaction of all.

Source for use with Question 1(b).

Source 2: From Eugene Lyons, The Life and Death of Sacco and Vanzetti, published 1927. Lyons was a Jewish journalist and communist sympathiser. Here he is writing about the trial of Sacco and Vanzetti.

These immigrants, Sacco and Vanzetti, combined everything that most offended and frightened folk from New England, where a sense of racial superiority flourished. Sacco and Vanzetti were from the lowest social layer of un-American immigrants at a time when Bolshevism gave householders nightmares. Sacco and Vanzetti were, by their own confession, reddest of the Reds. They were self-confessed labour agitators at a time when industry was struggling in a period of strikes and discontent. 15 20

The trial of Sacco and Vanzetti required no special effort to generate fear and hatred. The conviction was not a frame-up. Laws were no more stretched or violated than in most other criminal cases. The prosecution played no more tricks than usual but, in this case, every trick worked with deadly precision. The law enforcers were guided by deep-seated motives of fear and self-interest. 25

It was a perfect example of the functioning of class justice. Every judge, juror, police officer and governor played his appointed role easily to reach the required verdict without too much trouble to his conscience. A few even played their roles with a self-important sense of their own patriotism and superiority. 30

Option 2H.2: The USA, 1955–92: conformity and challenge

Source for use with Question 2(a).

Source 3: From a report in a California newspaper, published 24 October 1975. Here it records the views of Harvey Milk, a gay rights activist, who later became the first openly gay candidate to be elected to public office in the United States.

Harvey Milk, who openly admits that he is homosexual, says that, when he first ran for the office of County Supervisor in the San Francisco city elections two years ago, 'people could not get past the word 'gay'. Now he is again up for election to the same post and he claims that it is hardly an issue any more.

The 45-year-old, originally from New York City, received only 17,000 votes when he ran in that election for County Supervisor in 1973. But times have changed, he says. 5

'People know that the city of San Francisco is struggling financially and they do not care if I am green with two heads,' Milk said. 'Now that my credibility is established, being gay is not an issue.' 10

Source for use with Question 2(b).

Source 4: From The Redstockings Manifesto, issued in New York City, 7 July 1969. It was printed as a handout to be distributed at women's liberation rallies. The Redstockings was a left-wing feminist group.

After centuries of struggle, women are uniting to achieve their final liberation from male supremacy.

Women are an oppressed class. Our oppression is total, affecting every part of our lives. We are exploited as sex objects, breeders, domestic servants and cheap labour. We are considered inferior beings, whose only purpose is to improve men's lives. The behaviour expected of us is enforced by the threat of physical violence. 15

Male superiority is the oldest form of domination. All men have oppressed women. We reject the idea that women are to blame for their own oppression. Women's submission is not the result of brain-washing or mental illness, but of continual daily pressure from men. We do not need to change ourselves, we need to change men. 20

Our chief task at present is to unite all women. We must make common cause with the poorest, most brutally exploited women. We reject all economic or educational privileges that divide us from other women. We will only consider what is good for women. 25

We call on all men to give up their male privilege and to support women's liberation in the interest of our humanity and their own.
