Sources for use with Section A.

Answer the questions in Section A on the option for which you have been prepared.

Option 2H.1: The USA, c1920–55: boom, bust and recovery

Source for use with Question 1(a).

Source 1: From a speech made by President Hoover to an audience of 400 key businessmen, 5 December 1929. Here he is reporting on a series of meetings with leading bankers and industrialists at the White House over the previous two weeks.

The very fact that you gentlemen come together to plan future prosperity represents an opportunity to get business more involved in the welfare of the public. A great responsibility rests upon the business and economic organisations of our country.

I am pleased to report that the conferences with the leaders of big business, that began on 19 November, have already produced substantial results in three significant areas. Firstly, the central bank has made more credit available to business. Secondly, it has lowered interest rates to responsible local banks. Thirdly, it has refused such a favour to those banks that made irresponsible loans to individuals for the purpose of stock market speculation.

Taken together, these measures will ensure the availability of funds for businesses to invest in legitimate projects. In addition, the industrialists that I invited to the White House have voluntarily agreed to maintain wage rates for their workers. These business decisions will sustain the purchasing power of the nation by boosting the sales of consumer goods.

Source for use with Question 1(b).

Source 2: From Martin Dies, The Trojan Horse in America, published 1940. Dies was the first chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC). Here he is commenting on those who benefited from the WPA in the years 1938–39.

The Works Projects Administration (WPA) was the greatest financial bonus that ever came to the Communists in the United States. Josef Stalin, the Communist dictator of the Soviet Union, could not have been more delighted by his agents in the USA. Relief projects for writers and musicians swarmed with Communists. Communist working men, who had been recipients of relief, were now entrusted by New Deal officials with high administrative positions in the projects. In one Federal Writers' Project in New York, one third of the writers were self-confessed, signed-up members of the Communist Party.

Many witnesses have testified that it was necessary for WPA workers to join the Workers Alliance, a left-wing organisation, in order to get or retain their jobs. By 1938, the Workers Alliance was thoroughly dominated by the Communist Party, effectively becoming an extension of that organisation. Several hundred Communists held advisory or administrative positions in the WPA projects.

Option 2H.2: The USA, 1955–92: conformity and challenge

Source for use with Question 2(a).

Source 3: From a speech made by Dr Martin Luther King Jr in support of the Montgomery Improvement Association at the Holt Street Baptist Church, Montgomery, Alabama, 5 December 1955. Five thousand people attended this meeting.

We are tired of being segregated and humiliated; tired of being kicked by the brutal feet of oppression. We have no alternative but to protest.

Let nobody compare our actions to the Ku Klux Klan. The Klan protests for the continuation of injustice; we are protesting for the birth of justice. Their methods lead to violence and lawlessness. But in our protest there will be no cross burnings. We will be guided by the highest principles of law and order and by persuasion, not brutality. Our actions must be guided by the deepest principles of our Christian faith. We must not end up hating our white brothers. 5

We are not wrong in what we are doing. If we are wrong, the Supreme Court of this nation is wrong. If we are wrong, the Constitution of the United States is wrong. If we are wrong, God Almighty is wrong. 10

Source for use with Question 2(b).

Source 4: From a news report by Bobbie Battista on Cable News Network (CNN), a national television news channel, 31 July 1998. Battista was a well-known newscaster and presenter during the 1980s and 1990s. Here she comments on MTV in the 1980s and the early 1990s.

The first song played on MTV was the Buggles' hit 'Video Killed the Radio Star'. Now, video makes the radio star, thanks to that fateful day in 1981, when music ventured into the realm of television, via MTV, and into the homes of millions of Americans. 15

The first videos were simple and made no money. But kids were hooked, and videos became more sophisticated. Music videos soon became the most innovative stuff on TV. Some, like A-Ha's 'Take on Me', which stepped between reality and fantasy, set new standards in special effects and animation, guaranteeing a wider audience. 20

Before long, MTV was the red-hot centre of the music business. Videos sold records, so record companies spent money to make them more stylish. Michael Jackson's $1.5 million 'Thriller' video helped make the album the best seller of all time.

MTV's style, using hand-held cameras, had a wider impact. 'Miami Vice' became a popular TV show by adopting the look of rock videos. Soon, nearly everything on TV looked like MTV. In 1992, MTV even held a musical event, 'Rock the Vote', which introduced presidential candidates to a new generation of voters. 25
