

Oxford Cambridge and RSA

Thursday 23 May 2024 – Morning

A Level History A

Y306/01 Rebellion and Disorder under the Tudors 1485–1603

Time allowed: 2 hours 30 minutes

You must have:

- the OCR 12-page Answer Booklet

INSTRUCTIONS

- Use black ink.
- Write your answer to each question in the Answer Booklet. The question numbers must be clearly shown.
- Fill in the boxes on the front of the Answer Booklet.
- Answer the question in Section A and any two questions in Section B.

INFORMATION

- The total mark for this paper is 80.
- The marks for each question are shown in brackets [].
- Quality of extended response will be assessed in questions marked with an asterisk (*).
- This document has 4 pages.

ADVICE

- Read each question carefully before you start your answer.

SECTION A

Read the two passages and answer Question 1.

- 1 Evaluate the interpretations in both of the two passages.

Explain which you think is more convincing as an explanation of the nature of the Pilgrimage of Grace. [30]

Passage A

The rebellion was overwhelmingly popular and spontaneous. There was no gentry conspiracy. None was found at the time, nor can one be discovered now. However, the gentry were first forced into offering leadership and then strove hard to establish their grip over the movement. The dynamic heart of the rising, whether in Lincolnshire, Yorkshire, or the fringes of Lancashire and Cumbria, lay with the commons. Whilst every local movement had its own identity, the determination to rise came from two sources.

Firstly, the rumours of the destruction of parish religion which circulated in the summer of 1536 (the closure of parish churches, the confiscation of church goods, the threatened taxation of baptisms). Secondly, word of the rising elsewhere. The movement in the East Riding of Yorkshire and the central area of the West Riding of Yorkshire saw itself as being a part of the Lincolnshire rising. The risings in Craven [part of North Yorkshire], Lancashire and Cumbria were a response to the movement in Richmondshire [part of North Yorkshire], although it is not possible to say with certainty whether the rising there took place in reaction to the news of Lincolnshire.

Whilst the gentry secured control of the movement by the end of October and used it to try and buy concessions to appease the commons, all the 1536 movements were, in the first days, movements in which the bonds of obedience to social superiors were cut or, perhaps it is truer to say, reversed: the rebels expected the gentry to do their bidding. In the second phase of the rebellion, the gentry won a competition for the leadership with the rebels but found themselves faced with the problem of leading an enthusiastic rank and file, who would accept elite authority so long as it was advancing their interests.

R. Hoyle, The Pilgrimage of Grace, published in 2001.

Passage B

Adapted from Reform and Reformation, G. Elton. pages 264 and 266-7, Arnold, 1977. Item removed due to third party copyright restrictions.

4

SECTION B

Answer any two questions.

2* How similar were rebellions in England and Ireland in the period from 1485 to 1603? [25]

3* 'All Tudor rebellions failed to have an impact on government and society.'

How far do you agree with this view of the period from 1485 to 1603? [25]

4* How important was the Church in the maintenance of political stability in the period from 1485 to 1603? [25]

END OF QUESTION PAPER

OCR
Oxford Cambridge and RSA

Copyright Information

OCR is committed to seeking permission to reproduce all third-party content that it uses in its assessment materials. OCR has attempted to identify and contact all copyright holders whose work is used in this paper. To avoid the issue of disclosure of answer-related information to candidates, all copyright acknowledgements are reproduced in the OCR Copyright Acknowledgements Booklet. This is produced for each series of examinations and is freely available to download from our public website (www.ocr.org.uk) after the live examination series. If OCR has unwittingly failed to correctly acknowledge or clear any third-party content in this assessment material, OCR will be happy to correct its mistake at the earliest possible opportunity.

For queries or further information please contact The OCR Copyright Team, The Triangle Building, Shaftesbury Road, Cambridge CB2 8EA.

OCR is part of Cambridge University Press & Assessment, which is itself a department of the University of Cambridge.