General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.

How to award marks when level descriptions are used

1. Finding the right level

The first stage is to decide which level the answer should be placed in. To do this, use a 'best-fit' approach, deciding which level most closely describes the quality of the answer. Answers can display characteristics from more than one level, and where this happens markers must use the guidance below and their professional judgement to decide which level is most appropriate.

For example, one stronger passage at L4 would not by itself merit a L4 mark, but it might be evidence to support a high L3 mark, unless there are substantial weaknesses in other areas. Similarly, an answer that fits best in L3 but which has some characteristics of L2 might be placed at the bottom of L3. An answer displaying some characteristics of L3 and some of L1 might be placed in L2.

2. Finding a mark within a level

After a level has been decided on, the next stage is to decide on the mark within the level. The instructions below tell you how to reward responses within a level. However, where a level has specific guidance about how to place an answer within a level, always follow that guidance.

Levels containing two marks only

Start with the presumption that the work will be at the top of the level. Move down to the lower mark if the work only just meets the requirements of the level.

Levels containing three or more marks

Markers should be prepared to use the full range of marks available in a level and not restrict marks to the middle. Markers should start at the middle of the level (or the upper-middle mark if there is an even number of marks) and then move the mark up or down to find the best mark. To do this, they should take into account how far the answer meets the requirements of the level:

- If it meets the requirements fully, markers should be prepared to award full marks within the level. The top mark in the level is used for answers that are as good as can realistically be expected within that level
- If it only barely meets the requirements of the level, markers should consider awarding marks at the bottom of the level. The bottom mark in the level is used for answers that are the weakest that can be expected within that level
- The middle marks of the level are used for answers that have a reasonable match to the descriptor. This might represent a balance between some characteristics of the level that are fully met and others that are only barely met.

Indicative content

Examiners are reminded that indicative content is provided as an illustration to markers of some of the material that may be offered by students. It does not show required content and alternatives should be credited where valid.

Anglo-Saxon and Norman England, 1060-88

Question
1 (a)	Describe two features of the career of Bishop Odo. Target: Knowledge of key features and characteristics of the period. AO1: 4 marks.
Marking instructions
Award one mark for each valid feature identified up to a maximum of two features. The second mark should be awarded for supporting information. e.g. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Odo fought in the Battle of Hastings (1), for which William I rewarded Odo with the earldom of Kent (1). • Odo became the king's regent in England (1), when William I was in Normandy (1). • Odo led a rebellion against William II (1), in support of Robert, William II's older brother, becoming king (1). Accept other appropriate features and supporting information.

Question
1 (b)		Explain why William I ordered the Harrying of the North (1069-70).  You may use the following in your answer: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> the Danes York You must also use information of your own.  Target: Analysis of second order concepts: causation [AO2]; Knowledge and understanding of features and characteristics [AO1]. AO2: 6 marks. AO1: 6 marks.
Level	Mark	Descriptor
	0	No rewardable material.
1	1–3	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> A simple or generalised answer is given, lacking development and organisation. [AO2] Limited knowledge and understanding of the topic is shown. [AO1]
2	4–6	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> An explanation is given showing limited analysis and with implicit or unsustained links to the conceptual focus of the question. It shows some development and organisation of material, but a line of reasoning is not sustained. [AO2] Accurate and relevant information is included, showing some knowledge and understanding of the period. [AO1] Maximum 5 marks for Level 2 answers that do not go beyond aspects prompted by the stimulus points.
3	7–9	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> An explanation is given, showing some analysis, which is mainly directed at the conceptual focus of the question. It shows a line of reasoning that is generally sustained, although some passages may lack coherence and organisation. [AO2] Accurate and relevant information is included, showing good knowledge and understanding of the required features or characteristics of the period studied. [AO1] Maximum 8 marks for Level 3 answers that do not go beyond aspects prompted by the stimulus points.
4	10–12	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> An analytical explanation is given which is directed consistently at the conceptual focus of the question, showing a line of reasoning that is coherent, sustained and logically structured. [AO2] Accurate and relevant information is precisely selected to address the question directly, showing wide-ranging knowledge and understanding of the required features or characteristics of the period studied. [AO1] No access to Level 4 for answers that do not go beyond aspects prompted by the stimulus points.

Performance in AO1 and AO2 is interdependent. An answer displaying no qualities of AO2 cannot be awarded more than the top of Level 1, no matter how strong performance is in AO1; markers should note that the expectation for AO1 is that candidates demonstrate both knowledge and understanding.

The middle mark in each level may be achieved by stronger performance in either AO1 or AO2.

Indicative content guidance

Answers must be credited according to candidates' deployment of material in relation to the qualities outlined in the mark scheme. While specific references are made in the indicative content below, this does not imply that these must be included; other relevant material must also be credited.

Relevant points may include:

- After the Norman victory in 1069 against Anglo-Danish forces, William feared that Danes and other rebels were hiding and living off the land until more men from Denmark arrived.
- William was unsure whether his payment to the Danes to leave England would be a permanent solution to the threat of a Danish invasion.
- William wanted revenge on the North following a series of rebellions. Rebels had killed the Earl of Northumbria, Robert Cumin, in Durham and 3,000 Norman soldiers had been killed during the uprising in York led by Edgar the Aethling.
- William needed a different strategy to assert his authority over the North, as it was unlikely he could defeat rebels in an open battle.
- William needed to suppress the North as the frequent uprisings were encouraging further revolts on the borders with Wales and in the West country.
- William needed to ensure that England was as secure as possible, especially for the lengthy periods of time that he would be in Normandy.

Question
1 (c) (i)		'The main reason for King Harold's defeat at the Battle of Hastings was his poor leadership.' How far do you agree? Marking instructions

Performance in AO1 and AO2 is interdependent. An answer displaying no qualities of AO2 cannot be awarded more than the top of Level 1, no matter how strong performance is in AO1; markers should note that the expectation for AO1 is that candidates demonstrate both knowledge and understanding.

The first two bullet points [AO1 and AO2] account for 3 of the 4 marks in the level and are equally weighted; the third bullet point [AO2] accounts for the remaining mark. Once the level has been found, there are two steps to follow to determine the mark within the level:

- Markers should consider bullet points 1 and 2 together. Strong performance (for the level) in both would be awarded all 3 marks, while 2 marks may be achieved by stronger performance in either bullet point; weak performance would be awarded 1 mark.
- The fourth mark in each level is allocated to the bullet point 3 and should be considered independently of the award of the other marks.

Indicative content guidance

Answers must be credited according to candidates' deployment of material in relation to the qualities outlined in the mark scheme. While specific references are made in the indicative content below, this does not imply that these must be included; other relevant material must also be credited. The grouping of points below does not imply that this is how candidates are expected to structure their answers.

Relevant points which support the statement may include:

- As a result of Harold's decision to march south quickly, his army arrived for battle both tired and ill-prepared.
- Harold's decision to march to Hastings meant that extra reinforcements from the south-west were unable to join his army.
- Harold relied on the old Anglo-Saxon wall technique, despite having knowledge of Norman tactics from previously fighting alongside their forces in 1064.
- Harold's decision to fight on foot rather than on horseback made it difficult for him to communicate orders to his soldiers during the battle.

Relevant points which counter the statement may include:

- William's army was well-prepared, had brought all the equipment needed and had time to both rest and train before the actual battle.
- William had gained the Papal Banner so his soldiers were confident they had God's blessing to fight and believed that, if killed, they would go to heaven.
- William's leadership during the battle, including his fighting on horseback, meant he could respond quickly and control his troops effectively.
- The Normans' military tactic of a 'feigned retreat' fooled the Anglo-Saxon army by luring it onto flat ground where it could be cut down by Norman knights.

The grouping of points below does not imply that this is how candidates are expected to structure their answers.

Relevant points which support the statement may include:

- The introduction of the 'forest' increased the royal demesne, with rents for royal land paid directly to the monarchy.
- Fines payable to the monarch were introduced as punishments for the breaking of forest laws.
- The setting up of the 'forest' increased income for William I with the introduction of 'forest' officials to collect fines.
- The 'forest' increased income to the King as the wealthy had to buy rights to hunt.

Relevant points which counter the statement may include:

- The introduction of the 'forest' increased William I's authority with the implementation of severe forest laws, including blinding and execution, for crimes such as poaching.
- As a result of forest laws, the lives of the poor were much harder. Restrictions, such as the felling of trees, made it difficult to construct buildings and removed sources of food and fuel.
- The 'forest' deprived some people of their actual homes, such as the New Forest in Hampshire where 500 families were driven off the land.
- The 'forest' was resented by the wealthy as it deprived them of hunting as a sport and the 'forest' was seen as existing only for the king's pleasure.
