General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.

As a result, families moved to the New World and settled permanently, creating a permanent society. • Native labour formed part of the encomienda system. As a result, millions of natives became enslaved. • The most lucrative encomiendas were reserved for the biggest investors, which meant that more people were encouraged to join and invest in conquest expeditions, leading to further conquest.

This left Columbus with only two ships for further exploration.

- Columbus came across Haiti, where he spent time trading with the natives and continuing to search for gold. He found small quantities of gold and as a result he stayed for some time.
- On Christmas Eve, Columbus's ship, the Santa Maria, was wrecked off the coast of Haiti. Consequently, Columbus no longer had the capacity to return to Spain with all his crew.

The importance of Cortes's actions as Governor and Captain-General of New Spain for Spanish control of Mexico.

Relevant points may include:

- Cortes claimed the land for Spain and founded new cities, which encouraged more Spaniards to move to and settle in New Spain.
- Cortes built Mexico City, which became an important seat of political power from which Spain could control the rest of the country.
- Cortes introduced Catholicism and requested large numbers of friars from Spain, who converted a lot of the native population and spread the Spanish language. This decreased resistance to Spanish rule.
- Cortes encouraged agriculture and thousands of plants were cultivated across the country, increasing New Spain's independence as a colony and encouraging settlement of the whole country.

The importance of the discovery of silver in Bolivia for the expansion of the Spanish Empire in the New World.

Relevant points may include:

- The huge quantities of silver being shipped back encouraged more Spaniards to move to the New World, to seek their fortunes.
- The job and wealth opportunities led to vast mining camps being formed in the area around Potosi, increasing the number of Spaniards settled in the New World.
- Spaniards moved to the region from Spain due to an increase in the number of skilled jobs available, for example, those connected to the mining industry.
- Supply routes and new towns, most notably La Paz, became established on the route connecting Potosi with Lima, entrenching Spanish control.
