General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.

How to award marks when level descriptions are used

1. Finding the right level

The first stage is to decide which level the answer should be placed in. To do this, use a 'best-fit' approach, deciding which level most closely describes the quality of the answer. Answers can display characteristics from more than one level, and where this happens markers must use the guidance below and their professional judgement to decide which level is most appropriate.

For example, one stronger passage at L4 would not by itself merit a L4 mark, but it might be evidence to support a high L3 mark, unless there are substantial weaknesses in other areas. Similarly, an answer that fits best in L3 but which has some characteristics of L2 might be placed at the bottom of L3. An answer displaying some characteristics of L3 and some of L1 might be placed in L2.

2. Finding a mark within a level

After a level has been decided on, the next stage is to decide on the mark within the level. The instructions below tell you how to reward responses within a level. However, where a level has specific guidance about how to place an answer within a level, always follow that guidance.

Levels containing two marks only

Start with the presumption that the work will be at the top of the level. Move down to the lower mark if the work only just meets the requirements of the level.

Levels containing three or more marks

Markers should be prepared to use the full range of marks available in a level and not restrict marks to the middle. Markers should start at the middle of the level (or the upper-middle mark if there is an even number of marks) and then move the mark up or down to find the best mark. To do this, they should take into account how far the answer meets the requirements of the level:

- If it meets the requirements fully, markers should be prepared to award full marks within the level. The top mark in the level is used for answers that are as good as can realistically be expected within that level
- If it only barely meets the requirements of the level, markers should consider awarding marks at the bottom of the level. The bottom mark in the level is used for answers that are the weakest that can be expected within that level
- The middle marks of the level are used for answers that have a reasonable match to the descriptor. This might represent a balance between some characteristics of the level that are fully met and others that are only barely met.

Indicative content

Examiners are reminded that indicative content is provided as an illustration to markers of some of the material that may be offered by students. It does not show required content and alternatives should be credited where valid.

B3: Henry VIII and his Ministers, 1509-40

Question
1 (a)	Describe two features of the 'Field of the Cloth of Gold' (1520). Target: Knowledge of key features and characteristics of the period. AO1: 4 marks.
Marking instructions
Award one mark for each valid feature identified up to a maximum of two features. The second mark should be awarded for supporting information. e.g. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The 'Field of the Cloth of Gold' was a diplomatic meeting between the rulers of England and France (1), which was organised by Wolsey (1). • Henry VIII and King Francis I had a wrestling match (1), which Francis won (1). • No expense was spared for the conference (1), with the tents made out of cloth of gold (1). Accept other appropriate features and supporting information.

Question
1 (b)		Explain why Cromwell made changes to government in the years 1534-40.  You may use the following in your answer: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • the Privy Council • the Act of Succession You must also use information of your own.  Target: Analysis of second order concepts: causation [AO2]; Knowledge and understanding of features and characteristics [AO1]. AO2: 6 marks. AO1: 6 marks.

2	4-6	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • An explanation is given showing limited analysis and with implicit or unsustainable links to the conceptual focus of the question. It shows some development and organisation of material, but a line of reasoning is not sustained. [AO2] • Accurate and relevant information is included, showing some knowledge and understanding of the period. [AO1] Maximum 5 marks for Level 2 answers that do not go beyond aspects prompted by the stimulus points.

[AO1] No access to Level 4 for answers that do not go beyond aspects prompted by the stimulus points.

Performance in AO1 and AO2 is interdependent. An answer displaying no qualities of AO2 cannot be awarded more than the top of Level 1, no matter how strong performance is in AO1; markers should note that the expectation for AO1 is that candidates demonstrate both knowledge and understanding.

The middle mark in each level may be achieved by stronger performance in either AO1 or AO2.

Indicative content guidance

Answers must be credited according to candidates' deployment of material in relation to the qualities outlined in the mark scheme. While specific references are made in the indicative content below, this does not imply that these must be included; other relevant material must also be credited.

Relevant points may include:

- Cromwell wanted to make the government more efficient and so made changes to the Privy Council, such as limiting the number of councillors and basing them in London.
- Following the birth of Elizabeth, Cromwell needed to ensure that the population would accept her as legitimate; the Act of Succession was passed, requiring everybody to take the Oath of Succession, thus increasing government intervention in people's lives.
- Cromwell wanted to reduce the power that the Church had in England and introduced laws to clarify Henry's sovereignty in England.
- Changes to government were necessary to deal with the consequences of Henry's separation from Catherine of Aragon: Cromwell used Parliament to confirm that Henry had the necessary powers.
- Cromwell wanted to ensure that the King's law was followed across the whole country and therefore pursued the Act of Union with Wales.
- Cromwell re-established the Council of the North to address the civil unrest caused by the centralisation of government in Westminster.

Performance in AO1 and AO2 is interdependent. An answer displaying no qualities of AO2 cannot be awarded more than the top of Level 1, no matter how strong performance is in AO1; markers should note that the expectation for AO1 is that candidates demonstrate both knowledge and understanding.

The first two bullet points [AO1 and AO2] account for 3 of the 4 marks in the level and are equally weighted; the third bullet point [AO2] accounts for the remaining mark. Once the level has been found, there are two steps to follow to determine the mark within the level:

- Markers should consider bullet points 1 and 2 together. Strong performance (for the level) in both would be awarded all 3 marks, while 2 marks may be achieved by stronger performance in either bullet point; weak performance would be awarded 1 mark.
- The fourth mark in each level is allocated to the bullet point 3 and should be considered independently of the award of the other marks.

Indicative content guidance

Answers must be credited according to candidates' deployment of material in relation to the qualities outlined in the mark scheme. While specific references are made in the indicative content below, this does not imply that these must be included; other relevant material must also be credited. The grouping of points below does not imply that this is how candidates are expected to structure their answers.

Relevant points which support the statement may include:

- Anne Boleyn and her family had become very powerful at court and influenced the king to reject Wolsey, whom they saw as a threat to their power.
- Henry VIII's closest courtiers, including the Duke of Norfolk, told the king that Wolsey was against Henry's marriage to Anne.
- Wolsey had made himself increasingly unpopular among the nobility with the Eltham Ordinances (1526).
- The nobility resented Wolsey's power and influence because he came from a humble background, and therefore they conspired against him.

Relevant points which counter the statement may include:

- Wolsey was unable to secure the annulment of Henry's marriage to Catherine of Aragon, angering the king.
- Wolsey's foreign policy decisions of the 1520s had created an enemy in Charles V, who was blocking Henry VIII's divorce from Catherine of Aragon.
- Wolsey was accused of maintaining loyalty to the pope over the king, the crime of praemunire.
- Wolsey had become extremely wealthy and Henry VIII wanted his revenue streams.

The grouping of points below does not imply that this is how candidates are expected to structure their answers.

Relevant points which support the statement may include:

- Thomas More was Lord Chancellor – one of the king's closest advisers – and therefore his opposition had the potential to influence other nobles at court.
- More's resignation demonstrated a lack of unity among Henry's councillors.
- More was a noted and leading European scholar, who was widely respected by his peers, and therefore his opposition was influential.
- More refused to take the Oath of Supremacy but refused to explain why, making it impossible to charge him under the Treason Act. This meant his opposition was long-lasting.

Relevant points which counter the statement may include:

- Elizabeth Barton, the Nun of Kent, had public support and was a rallying point for lower class opposition to the Reformation.
- Barton prophesied the king's death if he were to divorce Catherine of Aragon and her prophesies were published in a book, spreading her opposition widely among the population.
- John Fisher was an influential bishop and was very vocal in his support of Catherine of Aragon and papal power.
- Robert Aske led the Pilgrimage of Grace in part due to concerns around religious change; the rebellion involved an estimated 40,000 people and prompted changes to Henry's religious policies.
