(✎) Spelling, punctuation and grammar and the use of specialist terminology [5]

Interpretation A

After March 1939 British attempts to build a barrier to Hitler's expansion were either half-hearted or too late. Led by Chamberlain, the government chose not to deter Hitler. Chamberlain's powerful, stubborn personality and his skill in debate probably held back serious chances of preventing the Second World War.

From 'Chamberlain and Appeasement' by British historian Robert Parker, published in Britain in 1993.

Interpretation B

America's leaders often whipped up Cold War fears that were very exaggerated. These at times frightened its allies but also deepened divisions at home. However, whether the Cold War could have been managed much less dangerously is doubtful. This is because of the way Stalin and his successors operated, and because of the refusal of American policy-makers to retreat from their grand expectations of their role in the post-war world.

From 'Grand Expectations', written by the US historian James Patterson and published in the USA in 1996.

Source A

4 DEAD, 11 HURT AS KIDS RIOT
Police clash with protest marchers.

At least 4 people are reported dead and 14 injured in Soweto today when police clashed with some 10,000 school-kids who marched through the streets of the townships, protesting against being taught certain subjects in schools in the language of Afrikaans.

From the front page of a black South African newspaper in Johannesburg, 'The World', from the 16 June 1976.

The article is reporting on the Soweto students' uprising. 'The World' was banned in 1977.

Source B

I have a growing fear that unless something is done very soon, then bloodshed and violence are going to happen in South Africa. People made desperate by despair and unfairness will use desperate means. I am frightened that we may soon reach a point of no return that will come to a bloody ending, which is too horrible to think about.

A letter from Bishop Desmond Tutu to Prime Minister John Vorster, 8 May 1976

- 8* 'FW de Klerk was the most significant reason that Apartheid ended.' How far do you agree with this view about the collapse of Apartheid? [18]
