Source A

Extracts from the diary of Luise Solmitz, a teacher living in the German city of Hamburg. Luise Solmitz was married to Friedrich, a man who had been born into a Jewish family but chose to worship as a Christian. In 1935, Friedrich was categorised as Jewish and lost his citizenship rights under the Nuremberg Laws. Luise Solmitz was not from a Jewish family.

Source B

A poster made by John Heartfield in July 1934. The poster was published in Czechoslovakia. Heartfield had lived in Berlin until April 1933.

The poster depicts a member of the SA during the events known as the 'Night of the Long Knives'.

The 'Night of the Long Knives' was when Hitler ordered the SS to either arrest or murder his political rivals and the leaders of the SA.

Source C

An extract from a law passed by the Nazi government on 3 July 1934. The word 'measures' is referring to the actions Hitler ordered on, and just after, the 'Night of the Long Knives'.

LAW CONCERNING MEASURES FOR THE DEFENCE OF THE STATE

The measures taken on 30 June, 1 July and 2 July to strike down treasonous attacks are justifiable and legal acts of self-defence by the state.

Treason means betraying your country.

Interpretation D

An extract from a book by historian Richard Evans. The book was published in 2005. The extract is describing events after the 'Night of the Long Knives'.

© Richard J. Evans, The Third Reich in Power, p 40-41, Penguin Books, 2005. From first line "Disillusioned, without a role, and unable to act in the same way as before" to last line "One senior officer told his fellow officers that he wished he had been there to see Röhm shot." Item removed
