In addition your answer to question 5 will assess your ability to spell, punctuate and use grammar accurately and use a wide range of specialist terms as appropriate.

Answer all questions.

QUESTION 1

Study the sources below and then answer the question which follows.

Source A

When we came into office in November 1951, we took over the expanded social services which had been provided by the war-time and post-war governments. We got through the financial crisis without cuts to these services. However, the cost has grown enormously, by about 35 per cent, greater than the rise in national income. The result is continuing balance of payments trouble and a fall in the value of our money.

[A government memorandum on the increased cost of social services (July 1955)]

QUESTION 2

Study the source below and then answer the question which follows.

Source C

Let us be frank about it – most of our people have never had it so good. Go around the country, go to the industrial towns and you will see a state of prosperity such as we have never had in my lifetime – nor indeed in the history of this country.

[Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, in a speech to a Conservative Party meeting, 20 July 1957]

To what extent does this source accurately reflect the economic recovery of the 1950s? [8]

[In your answer you should refer to the strengths and limitations of the source and use your own knowledge and understanding of the historical context.]

QUESTION 5

Read the interpretation below and then answer the question which follows.

People began to challenge and question authority, something that would have been unheard of a decade before. The Profumo Affair changed the relationship between government and press forever and seriously undermined the public's trust in politicians. Traditional respect of authority was replaced by suspicion and mistrust.

[Kimberley Watson, in an article entitled The 1960s: The Decade that Shook Britain, published on the tourist website Historic UK in 2015]

How far do you agree with this interpretation of changing attitudes towards authority during this period? [16]

[In your answer you should refer to how and why interpretations of this issue differ. Use your own knowledge and understanding of the wider historical debate over this issue to reach a well-supported judgement.]

Marks for spelling, punctuation and the accurate use of grammar and specialist terms are allocated to this question. [3]
