QUESTION 2

Study Sources D and E below and answer the question which follows.

Source D

Brighton is naturally a place of resort for travellers. Some of them were parading on the cliff. The people at Brighton make a very fine figure. The tradespeople are very nice to visitors. The houses are excellent. I can easily believe this to be a very healthy place: the open hills on the one side and the open sea on the other.

[From Rural Rides, a travel book written by the journalist and political reformer William Cobbett, published in 1830]

Source E

It may come as a surprise to learn that package holidays in 2018 are surviving and thriving once more. Or perhaps it won't, if you are one of the 51% of Britons who went on a package holiday abroad last year. Why are people returning to ready-made holidays? A recent report into holiday habits reveals that 75% of people choose a package because everything is taken care of.

[From an article entitled 'Open and shut case: why the package holiday is back' in The Guardian newspaper, published in 2018]

Which of the two sources is the more reliable to an historian studying how holidays and travel have changed over time? [6]

[In your answer you should refer to the content and authorship of the sources and use your own knowledge and understanding of the wider historical context.]
