General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.

4(c)	AO2 (4 marks)/AO3 (4 marks)/AO4 (4 marks) AO2 and AO3 <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Price elasticity of demand (PED) measures the responsiveness of quantity demanded to a change in price • After VAT in South Africa increased by 1% in 2018, many goods and services were more expensive, meaning that demand for goods with elastic demand ($PED > 1$) would have fallen by a larger percentage than the increase in price • As consumer spending and business confidence fell, it is likely many goods on which VAT is imposed, will have an elastic demand. Therefore, the South African Government would receive less revenue from these goods following the increase in VAT • By calculating PED, the government would be able to see the likely effect on demand following further VAT increases and therefore whether its revenue would increase or decrease following the rise AO4 <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • However, PED is only an estimate and actual demand may not be the same as the calculations suggest • There may have been other factors affecting consumer spending and business confidence and so a further rise in VAT may not have the same effect as in 2018 • Goods and services such as fruit and vegetables may have an inelastic PED (< 1) but as these are considered to be necessities, the South African Government has made them exempt from VAT anyway • PED would need to be calculated for many different products to allow an accurate prediction of the effect on government revenue • It may depend how much the government proposes increasing VAT by, as another 1% rise will lead to different revenue outcomes for them compared to a larger increase • PED may help the government decide whether to increase VAT again, but it may be better if used alongside other analysis of potential outcomes
