

Pearson Edexcel GCSE (9–1)History*Paper 3: Modern depth study*Option 32: Mao's China, c1945–76

Tuesday 12 June 2018 – Afternoon

Sources/Interpretations Booklet

Paper Reference

1HI0/32Do not return this booklet with the question paper.*P56277A

©2018 Pearson Education Ltd.

1/1/1

P 5 6 2 7 7 A

Turn over ►Pearson

Sources/interpretations for use with Section B.

Source B: From a speech made by Mao Zedong on 1 October 1949. Here he is announcing the establishment of the People's Republic of China.

The people supported our People's Liberation Army in defending the Chinese motherland. The People's Liberation Army fought like heroes to protect people's rights and property and to stop the suffering of the people. Together the People's Liberation Army and the people have eliminated the Guomintang troops and overthrown the reactionary rule of the Guomintang government. Now the war of the people's liberation has been won and the majority of the people have been freed.

Source C: From a letter written by the American Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to the President of the USA in 1949. The letter was published in American newspapers. The author is commenting on the Chinese Civil War, during which the USA supported the Guomintang.

During the significant year of 1948, the Guomintang lost every battle even though they had enough arms and ammunition. In fact, we had observed many problems with the Guomintang early in the war. These problems made it impossible for the Guomintang to resist the CCP.

The Guomintang leaders had proved incapable of dealing with the crisis facing them. Guomintang troops no longer wanted to fight and their government had lost the support of the people. The Communists, on the other hand, had strong discipline and fanatical enthusiasm. They also attempted to sell themselves as protectors and liberators of the people.

Interpretation 1: From Mao: A Very Short Introduction by D Davin, published 2013.

The Guomindang was disunited, incompetent and corrupt. It was unable to win despite large amounts of American government aid. Inflation and financial scandals made the Guomindang increasingly unpopular. Its troops lost the will to fight. Many people living in the towns began to think that the CCP could not be any worse than the Guomindang. In fact, as the Communists began to capture the towns they became more popular and gained a reputation as being honest and efficient.

Interpretation 2: From China 1900–76 by G Stewart, published 2006.

During the Civil War, support for the Communists appeared to be widening. The CCP targeted most classes of people. In the cities, it increasingly attracted intellectuals and those who wanted political change. In the countryside, it was careful not to lose the support of the better-off peasants. The CCP's policy of setting fair rents for houses, its aid to the village communities and the decent behaviour of the PLA troops, attracted the support of most peasants. People began to believe that the Communists would solve China's problems and so lift China off its knees.

BLANK PAGE

Acknowledgements

Source B taken from 'The Transformation of China 1936-97', Robert Whitfield, Oxford University Press

Source C taken from 'The Transformation of China 1936-97', Robert Whitfield, Oxford University Press

Interpretation 1 taken from 'Mao A Very Short Introduction', Delia Davin Oxford University Press

Interpretation 2 taken from 'China 1900-76', Geoff Stewart, Heinemann

Every effort has been made to contact copyright holders to obtain their permission for the use of copyright material. Pearson Education Ltd. will, if notified, be happy to rectify any errors or omissions and include any such rectifications in future editions.